

*"A quirky, hysterical tale ...
A+ for creativity ... nothing is predictable ... laugh-out loud adventure ..."*

~ Paige Lovitt
ReaderViews.com

Ross Cavins has a BS in Computer Science from UNC Greensboro. He currently works as a freelance website designer and internet programmer in the North Carolina Piedmont.

Two divorces and a mid-life crisis pushed him to pursue his life-long dream of writing a book. This is as close as it gets for now. His primary goal is to one day visit a bookstore and hear, "Hey, is this you?" instead of, "Hey, you gonna pay for that?"

He's much funnier in person. You can find him at his website: RossCavins.com

Follow The Money

A collection of interconnected short stories.

BISAC: Fiction-Humor

Format: Trade Paperback

Pub: July 4, 2010

Price: $13.99

Size: 5.5" x 8.5"

Author: Ross Cavins

ISBN: 9780982772003

Page Count: 262 pages

First Print Run: On Demand

RCG Publishing

Available from online bookstores or the author at:
Money.RossCavins.com

Follow the Money is a collection of ten interconnected short stories that will grab you, wrestle you to the ground and squeeze you until your funny bone snaps in two.

A botched kidnapping, a money scam, a not-so-average convenience store holdup ... each story flows (with the money) through a series of interesting, and sometimes bizarre, plots. Layered and interweaved with seamless complexity, recurring characters and everyday motifs bind the ten stories into a single universal plot.

Ingenious in its conception, flawless in its execution, Follow the Money is a hilarious, detailed study on the many facets of the human condition. Greed, Pride, Lust ... the seven deadly sins have never been so entertaining.

Prepare yourself for a raunchy, gritty ride you'll never want to end.